

ICE Technologies Named Innovator of the Year

PELLA, IOWA – (Feb. 8, 2008) – ICE Technologies Inc. has received the Innovator of the Year Award from the Pella Chamber of Commerce in its highly regarded Annual Hall of Fame Awards. More than 50 nominations were received for eight award categories. Criteria for the Innovator of the Year Award state that “the individual, business or group is a leader in their field and has implemented new or innovative products or ideas.” A selection committee of six received nominations and named ICE Technologies the winner.

Managing Partner Keith Van Donselaar commented, “We’re honored by this award recognizing our leadership for information technology services provided to community healthcare providers nationwide. The award supports the ICE Technologies’ vision to be recognized by our clients as the single best provider of quality services and outcomes.”

Winners were announced in early February and will be recognized for their achievements at an annual dinner later in the month. The Hall of Fame Awards have been awarded annually since 1993.

About ICE Technologies

For nearly 20 years, ICE Technologies has helped rural and community healthcare providers meet their distinct information technology challenges. ICE’s team of experienced security experts, systems engineers and healthcare consultants has been assisting community hospitals align technology with the needs of their organization by providing solutions that range from CIO-level advisory services, project management and software selection assistance, to the ongoing administration of healthcare information systems and networks.